INDEX TO VOLUME 20

A

Aakhus, M., "What Mediators Do with Words: Implementing Three Models of Rational Discussion in Dispute Mediation," 177–203
"Adversaries? Partners? How About Counterparts? On Metaphors in the Practice and Teaching of Negotiation and Dispute Resolution," 433–440
Affective satisfaction, 69
Affiliation, 73–74, 76–78
Aggression: Aboriginal Australians and, 289; in Papua New Guinea, 290. See also Conflict
Alternative dispute resolution (ADR): conceptions of culture and, 354, 357; Conflict Resolution Training Program and, 249–252; cultural sensitivity and, 352–354; origins of, 352–353. See also Conflict resolution; Dispute resolution; Mediation
Alternative Dispute Resolution Act (ADRA), 5, 8–9, 12, 19
American Arbitration Association (AAA), 386
American Bar Association, Section of Dispute Resolution, 386, 429
Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), 385, 387, 392
Apartheid, 360, 364
Architects, third-party roles of, 443–445, 450–453
Argument style, 30, 37–38. See also Divorce mediation, gender differences and (study)
Argument. See Divorce mediation, gender differences in argument and (study)
Articles: "From Determining Capacity to Facilitating Competencies: A New Mediation Framework," 385–401; "Gender Differences in Content and Style of Argument Between Couples During Divorce Mediation," 23–50; "How Do You Write 'Yes?': A Study on the Effectiveness of Online Dispute Resolution," 261–286; "Mediation, Power, and Cultural Difference," 287–306; "Mediation Within a Hierarchical Structure: How Can It Be Done Successfully," 51–65; "Mediator Reflections on Practice: Connecting Select Demographics and Preferred Orientations," 403–427; "Peer Mediation Training and Program Implementation in Elementary Schools: Research Results," 133–135; "The Sounds of Silence: Compelling Mediator Testimony in Olam v. Congress Mortgage Co.," 5–21; "Structural Sources of Conflict in a University Context," 161–176
"Aspects of Grief in Conflict: Re-Visioning Response to Dispute," 83–97
Association for Conflict Resolution (ACR), 386
Attorneys. See Lawyers
Attribution theory, 40
Autonomy, 73–74, 76–78
Avruch, K., "Type I and Type II Errors in Culturally Sensitive Conflict," 351–371

B

"Balancing on Words: Human Change Processes in Mediation," 331–349
Bargaining model, 191–196
Barsky, A. E., "Structural Sources of Conflict in a University Context," 161–176
Behavioral therapy, 43–44
Belonging, blood and, 358–359
Bias, mediator: capacity determination and, 392; empowerment and, 210; reporting of, 205–206; techniques for avoiding, 217–218, 223–227. See also Bias complaint (case analysis); Mediator orientations; Neutrality/impartiality, mediator
Bias complaint (case analysis): appearance of asymmetry and, 212, 223–224, 227; completeness of queries and, 219–220; data, 206; description of hearing, 206–209; discussion, 223–227; dominance of first story and, 212–213, 226, 228; emotion work and, 220–223, 226–228; empowerment and, 209–211, 223–224, 227; future research, 227; mediation hearing organization and, 224–226, 228; mediator interventions and, 213–218; mediator response to stories and, 218–220; mediator solicitation of stories and, 212–213; methods, 206; potential triggers in, 209–223; practice implications, 227–228; summaries of stories and, 218–219

Bickmore, K., "Peer Mediation Training and Program Implementation in Elementary Schools: Research Results," 133–135
Bluehouse, P., "Is It 'Peacemakers Teaching'? or Is It 'Teaching Peacemakers'?" 495–502
Book Reviews: I Hear What You Say, But What Are You Telling Me? The Strategic Use of Nonverbal Communication in Mediation, 121–127; Learning Lessons from Waco: When the Parties Bring Their Gods to the Negotiation Table, 373–378
Boundary setting, 503
Brigg, M., "Mediation, Power, and Cultural Difference," 287–306
Bureaucracy, discourse of, 236–237

C

Capacity, determination of party: definitions of, 385–386; discrimination and, 392; diversity issues and, 386; as fluid state, 391; focus areas for, 398–399; gray area of, 389; guidelines for determining, 387–388; implications/complications of, 390–392; informed consent and, 389–391; literature review on, 387–390; mediator bias and, 392; mediator judgment and, 387–388; mediator qualifications and, 388, 390; mediator role and, 385; mediator training and, 386; mental disability and, 392, 395; mental health clinicians and, 390; minimalist approach to, 389; professional standards and, 386–387; self-determination and, 390–392. See also Competencies, of parties
Carburetor controversy (case example): bargaining model and, 183; competing visions in, 183; diagnosis, 182–184; mediation session excerpts, 179–182; mediator bias and, 182–183; mediator neutrality/impartiality and, 183; mediator-client tension and, 178, 183 selective facilitation and, 183
Center for Conflict Resolution (CCR), of Cleveland Municipal School District (study) academic achievement outcomes and, 55–156; administrators/staff roles and, 147–149; attendance outcomes and, 154–155; conclusions, 156, 158; Elementary School Conflict Resolution Initiative and, 140–141, 145–147; future research, 156; limitations, 156; program advisers' roles and, 149–150; program design, 141; program interpretation and, 145; program origins, 139–140; qualitative analysis, 145–151; qualitative evidence, 143; quantitative evidence, 143–145; quantitative analysis, 151–156; recommendations, 156–158; research method, 142–145; research context, 139–140; research project, 141; results, 145–156; sample, 142–143; staff training/follow-up and, 145–147; Student Attitudes About Conflict survey and, 144, 152–154; student mediators' roles and, 150–151; survey results and, 152–154; suspension rates and, 155; Winning Against Violent Environments mediation program and, 139–14
Change: constructivist theory and, 335. See also Human change; Transformation
Cognitive development theory, 25, 39
Cognitive processes. See Human mind; Human thinking
Cohen, J. R., "Adversaries? Partners? How About Counterparts? On Metaphors in the Practice and Teaching of Negotiation and Dispute Resolution," 433–440
Colloquy: "Adversaries? Partners? How About Counterparts? On Metaphors in the Practice and Teaching of Negotiation and Dispute Resolution," 433–440; "Aspects of Grief in Conflict: Re-Visioning Response to Dispute," 83–97; "Balancing on Words: Human Change Processes in Mediation," 331–349; "Complexity, Conflict Resolution, and How the Mind Works," 485–494; "Conflict Resolution: If It Weren't for the Client, I'd Have Done a Great Job," 441–454; "Discourses in the Use and Emergence of Organizational Conflict," 231–247; "Disputing Neutrality: A Case Study of a Bias Complaint During Mediation," 203–230; "Emotional Intelligence and Mediation Training," 99–119; "Having Students Take Responsibility for the Process of Learning," 455–462; "How Can We Teach So It Takes?" 429–432; "Is It 'Peacemakers

Teaching'? or Is It 'Teaching Peacemakers'?" 495–502; "Learning About Learning: The Value of 'Insight,'" 477–484; "Negotiating Emotions," 67–82; "Training on Purpose," 473–476; "Type I and Type II Errors in Culturally Sensitive Conflict," 351–371; "Victims, Targets, Protectors, and Destroyers: Using Disputant Accounts to Develop a Grounded Taxonomy of Disputant Orientations," 307–329; "What Mediators Do with Words: Implementing Three Models of Rational Discussion in Dispute Mediation," 177–203; "Windows on Diversity: Lawyers, Culture, and Mediation Practice," 463–472
Communication: divorce mediation and, 42–43; emotional intelligence and, 112; emotions and, 70, 100; gender differences and, 26; marriage and, 36; power as, 54. See also Nonverbal communication
Competencies, facilitation of party: balancing cognitive/emotional components and, 397–398; discussion of possibilities and, 397; focus areas for, 398–399; mediator role in, 396–399; ongoing needs assessment and, 396; reflecting back and, 396–397; removing barriers to party choice and, 397; time considerations and, 397
Competencies, of parties: conceptual framework of determining, 392–395; definition of terms and, 393–394; mental disability and, 395; practice considerations and, 395–399; questions for determining, 398–399
Complex adaptive systems, 490–491, 493
"Complexity, Conflict Resolution, and How the Mind Works," 485–494
Comprehensive Peer Mediation Evaluation Program, 139
Compromise, etymology of, 436
Confessional process, of mediation, 294–295
Confidentiality, mediator, 16–17
Conflict: blood ties and, 359; complex adaptive systems and, 493; as constitutive, 289–290; as emergent, 232; emotional intelligence and, 114; ethnic, 358; etymology of, 436; EVLN (exit, voice, loyalty, neglect) model and, 308; grief and, 84, 86–88; harmony model and, 289; human mind and, 493; intractable, 374; mediator role and, 289; non-Western views of, 289–291; positive approach toward, 288–289; sources of, 162; views of selfhood and, 290–291; Western attitude toward, 287–288; worldview and, 375. See also Aggression; Conflict, in university context (study); Organizational conflict (study)
Conflict, in university context (study): background, 163–164; changes in university structure and, 171, 174; client groups and, 163; competition and, 166–167, 173; conclusions, 172–174; conflict resolution services and, 163, 174; findings, 165–171; hierarchy and, 168–170, 173; interviews, 164–165; limitations, 165; metathemes, 165–166; method, 164–165; ownership claims and, 163; purpose, 163–164; recommendations, 174; resource scarcity and, 162; sample, 164; stressful work environment and, 170–171, 173–174; structural issues and, 166, 172
Conflict management: emotional intelligence and, 116–117; EVLN (exit, voice, loyalty, neglect) model and, 308. See also Conflict resolution; Dispute resolution; Mediation; Negotiation
Conflict resolution: conceptions of culture and, 354, 357; human thinking and, 491–494; intractable conflict and, 374; mutual recognition and, 376; objectivity and, 492; reductionist approach to, 493; self-awareness and, 459; Western problem-solving approach to, 376; worldview and, 376. See also Alternative dispute resolution; Conflict resolution, culturally sensitive; Conflict transformation; Dispute resolution; Mediation
Conflict resolution, culturally sensitive: background/origins of, 352–354; Type I (cultural insensitivity) errors in, 362; Type II (overvaluing culture) errors in, 363–367
Conflict resolution education (CRE): academic achievement and, 380–381; failures of, 429; long-term violence reduction and, 381; RIPP program and, 381. See also Teaching/training models; Training/development
"Conflict Resolution: If It Weren't for the Client, I'd Have Done a Great Job," 441–454
Conflict Resolution Training Program: Leader's Manual, The, reviewed, 249–252
Conflict transformation: characteristics of process of, 232; organizational discourse and, 233. See also Conflict resolution
Constructivist theory, 335

Core role theory, 40
Couple therapy, 43–44
Crawford, S. H., "From Determining Capacity to Facilitating Competencies: A New Mediation Framework," 385–401
Critical discussion model, 184–191
Critical events, 374
Critical incidents: definition of, 374; Waco as, 373–374
Cross-cultural mediation: mediation models and, 254–255; mediator behavior and, 254; success in, 255–256. See also Conflict resolution, culturally sensitive; Culture; Intercultural mediation
Cultural competence: defining, 465; hidden assumptions and, 467; legal culture and, 467–468; mediation training and, 466–468; mediator awareness and, 468–471; mediators and, 465–466; process design and, 471
Cultural styles, 364, 367
Culture: ADR's conception of, 354; cautions for thinking about, 368; as cognitive representations, 354; conceptions of, 354; disputes and, 464–465; ethnicity and, 357–359; ethnocentric, 375; experience-distant concept of, 355–357; experience-near vs. experience-distant concepts of, 355–357; as flawed principle, 368; legal culture and, 469; mediation training and, 464; multiculturalism and, 359–361; as norms/values, 354; as perceptional orientation, 354; race and, 357, 359; as stylistic difference, 364, 367; technical vs. social sense of, 354–355; Type I (cultural insensitivity) errors and, 362; Type II (overvaluing culture) errors and, 363–367; who defines, 366; writing for/against, 367–368

D

Dabney, L., "From Determining Capacity to Facilitating Competencies: A New Mediation Framework," 385–401
Determinism, 487
Discourse. See Organizational discourse
"Discourses in the Use and Emergence of Organizational Conflict," 231–247
Disputant orientations: destroyers, 323–325; enforcers, 318–320; exception seekers, 314–316; information seekers, 313–314; protectors, 320–322; targets, 322–323; victims, 316–318. See also Disputant orientations (study)
Disputant orientations (study): coding scheme, 312; data, 312; discussion/conclusion, 325–326; EVLN (exit, voice, loyalty, neglect) model and, 308; future research, 326; interview process, 311–312; limitations of methods, 313; methodology, 310–313; ombuds and, 309–310; purpose of, 310; results, 313–325; subjects, 310–311; voice and, 308–309, 325
Dispute: culture and, 464–465; etymology of, 436
Dispute resolution: examples of grief in, 90–92; grief and, 83–84, 92–96; mediator approaches to, 93–96; role of grief in, 87–90; signs of grief in, 85, 89–90, 94; working with grief in, 92–96. See also Conflict resolution; Mediation; Negotiation; Online dispute resolution; Rational dispute resolution models
"Disputing Neutrality: A Case Study of a Bias Complaint During Mediation," 203–230
Diversity: apartheid and, 360, 364; assimilation and, 360; cultural responses to, 360; multiculturalism and, 360; mutual recognition and, 376; privatization of, 360; worldview and, 375
Diversity test, for mediation, 463–464
Divorce mediation: behavioral therapy and, 43–44 communication and, 42–43; couple therapy and, 43–44; mediator gender and, 44–45; negotiation and, 43; objective criteria in, 44; positive outcomes of, 24; predictive variables in, 24; self-determination and, 23. See also Divorce mediation, gender differences in argument and (study); Marriage dissolution mediation
Divorce mediation, gender differences and (study): argument style and, 26, 30–39; argument type and, 36–37; discussion, 38–42; future research and, 45–46; goal of, 28; hypotheses, 29; Israel background and, 26–28; participants, 29; practice implications, 42–45; procedure, 29–30; results, 30–36; summary, 45; research on, 24
Divorce mediators: court battles and, 23; gender and, 44–45; gender differences and, 42–45; as therapists, 23–24
Docherty, J., Learning Lessons from Waco: When the Parties Bring Their Gods to the Negotiation Table, reviewed, 373–378
Double loop learning, 459

E

Eaker, D. G., "Mediator Reflections on Practice: Connecting Select Demographics and Preferred Orientations," 403–427
Elementary School Conflict Resolution Initiative, 140–141, 145–147
Emotion work, 220–223, 226–227
Emotional argument style, 30
Emotional deception, 125
Emotional intelligence: analytical/ conceptual approaches and, 113; body awareness and, 102–103, 112; communication skills and, 112; conflict and, 114, 476 conflict management training and, 116–117; dimensions, 100–101; experiential approaches and, 112–113; judgment and, 115; mediation and, 100–105; mediator tools and, 111–115, 501–503; pedagogical techniques and, 111–115; performance and, 116; self-awareness and, 100–103, 501–502; self-control and, 502–503; self-reflective approaches and, 113–115; self-regulation and, 100, 103–105; spiritual approach and, 115; teaching, 115–11. See also Emotions; Emotional intelligence, mediation training and (study)
Emotional Intelligence and Mediation Training, 99–119
Emotional intelligence, mediation training and (study): analytical/conceptual approaches and, 113; conclusion, 117; emotional self-awareness and, 101–103; emotional self-regulation and, 103–105, 109–111; experiential approaches and, 112–113; findings, 106–109; literature review, 100–105; methodology, 105–106; pedagogical techniques and, 111–115; requests for training and, 117; self-reflective approaches and, 113–115; teaching emotional intelligence and, 115–117
Emotional valence, 69–71
Emotions: associations with/assumptions about, 67–68; communication and, 72, 100; conflict and, 99–100; exercises about, 104–105 experience and, 99; human thinking and, 490; identity concerns and, 68, 72–78; learning and, 475–476; legal framework and, 470; in meditation, 296; mediator tools and, 104, 501–503; mediator training approaches and, 104; meta, 69; negative, 70; as negotiable, 78–79; permission for, 112–113; positive, 69–70; relationships and, 71–72; self-awareness and, 502, 100–103; valence of, 69–70. See also Emotional intelligence; Grief
Emotions, negotiation and: affective satisfaction and, 69; conflict and, 99–100; emotional valence and, 69–71; exploiting and, 70–71; folk wisdom on, 67–68; identity concerns and, 68, 72–78; instrumental satisfaction and, 69; main ideas about, 68; negotiator rationality and, 67–68, 99–100; negotiator training and, 100; reaching negotiation goals and, 68–78; role tensions and, 75–78. See also Emotional intelligence, mediation training (study)
Employees: EVLN (exit, voice, loyalty, neglect) model and, 308; voice of, 308–309
Empowerment: conflict and, 288; education and, 495–496; ethical issues in, 210; financial issues and, 129–130; mediator bias and, 210; power balancing and, 209–210
Experience-distant (e/n) and experience-distant (e/d) concepts of culture, 355–362, 365–366, 368
Ethnic conflict, 358
Ethnicity: blood and belonging and, 358–359; conflict and, 358; culture and, 357–359; multiculturalism and, 359–360; racism and, 359
Evans, M. J., "Aspects of Grief in Conflict: Re-Visioning Response to Dispute," 83–97
Exit, voice, loyalty, neglect (EVLN) model, 308

F

"False Dichotomies and Asking the Right Questions," 253–256
Feminist psychoanalytic theory, 25, 39
Filner, J. M., "From Determining Capacity to Facilitating Competencies: A New Mediation Framework," 385–401
"From Determining Capacity to Facilitating Competencies: A New Mediation Framework," 385–401

G

"Gale, J., "Mediator Reflections on Practice: Connecting Select Demographics and Preferred Orientations," 403–427
Garcia, A. C., "Disputing Neutrality: A Case Study of a Bias Complaint During Mediation," 203–230

Gat, H., "Gender Differences in Content and Style of Argument Between Couples During Divorce Mediation," 23–50
Gender: mediator orientation and, 405; power imbalance and, 25; reasons for divorce and, 36
Gender differences: argument style/content and, 25–26; attribution theory and, 40; core role theory and, 40; divorce and, 40; divorce mediation and, 24; divorce mediators and, 42–45; negotiation and, 24–25; social construction theory and, 41–42; verbal communication and, 26; "voice" and, 25. See also Divorce mediation, gender differences in argument and (study)
"Gender Differences in Content and Style of Argument Between Couples During Divorce Mediation," 23–50
Grief: acknowledgement/expression of, 88; anticipatory, 85–86; breadth of relationship and, 87; commitment to relationship and, 87; conflict and, 84, 86–88; defining, 83–85; depth of relationship and, 86–87; dispute resolution and, 83–84, 92–96; examples of, 90–92; identifying, 88–90; manifestations of, 85, 89–90; mourning phases and, 85; organizational context and, 84, 86. See also Emotions

H

Hammond, A. G., "How Do You Write 'Yes'?: A Study on the Effectiveness of Online Dispute Resolution," 261–286
Harmony model, of mediation, 289
Harrison, T. R., "Victims, Targets, Protectors, and Destroyers: Using Disputant Accounts to Develop a Grounded Taxonomy of Disputant Orientations," 307–329
"Having Students Take Responsibility for the Process of Learning," 455–462
Herrman, M. S., "Mediator Reflections on Practice: Connecting Select Demographics and Preferred Orientations," 403–427
Hierarchical power, 56–57
Hollenbeck, K., "The Sounds of Silence: Compelling Mediator Testimony in Olam v. Congress Mortgage Co.," 5–21
Hollett, N., "Mediator Reflections on Practice: Connecting Select Demographics and Preferred Orientations," 403–427
Honeyman, C., "How Can We Teach So It Takes?" 429–432
Hoskins, M. L., "Balancing on Words: Human Change Processes in Mediation," 331–349
"How Can We Teach So It Takes?" 429–432
"How Do You Write 'Yes'?: A Study on the Effectiveness of Online Dispute Resolution," 261–286
Hughes, S. H., "Complexity, Conflict Resolution, and How the Mind Works," 485–494; "How Can We Teach So It Takes?" 429–432
Human change: active construction of realities and, 335; being in relation to other and, 336; chaos/breakdown and, 346; choice and constraint and, 347; communities of support and, 346; constructivist model and, 335; developmental paths/processes and, 336–337; metaphors/language and, 347; organizing/ordering experience and, 335–336; prescriptive mediation and, 332, 347; psychological studies on, 332; social aspect of knowing and, 336; symbolic representation and, 336; time and, 337, 346; transformation and, 332. See also Human change, and mediation (study)
Human change, and mediation (study): analytic model, 334–337; case study 1, 337–343; case study 2, 343–346; constructivist change theory model and, 335; data analysis, 333–334; interviews, 333; methodology, 333–334; participants, 333; purpose, 331–332; rationale, 332–333; recommendations, 346–348; results/discussion, 337–346
Human mind: as embodied, 488; workings of, 487–488
Human thinking: as complex adaptive system, 490–491, 493; determinism, 487; Enlightenment and, 486, 491; feeling nature of, 490; historical perspective on, 486–487; metaphorical nature of, 489–490; objectivism, 486; objectivity and, 492–493; recent developments in, 487–491; reductionism, 486–487, 491; scientific method, 487; unconscious nature of, 488–489

I

I Hear What You Say, But What Are You Telling Me? The Strategic Use of Nonverbal Communication in Mediation, reviewed, 121–127
Impartiality. See Neutrality/impartiality, mediator

Informed consent, 389–391
Insight model, of mediation, 479–482
Insight, 478–479
Instrumental satisfaction, 69
Intercultural mediation: cross-cultural views of conflict and, 289–290; cultural assumptions and, 300–301; emotionality vs. rationality in, 296; facilitative vs. elicitive approaches to, 301–302; Foucaultian approach to, 288, 291–292, 294–295, 298; introduction to mediation process and, 293–294; political factors and, 300; power in, 291–298; recommendations for, 302–304; reframing and, 295; research/practice implications for, 298–304; self-awareness and, 301; selfhood and, 290–292; storytelling/ confession process in, 294–295; valuing cultural differences and, 298–301; Western vs. non-Western values and, 287–293, 295–298. See also Conflict resolution, culturally sensitive; Cross-cultural mediation
"Is It 'Peacemakers Teaching'? or Is It 'Teaching Peacemakers'?" 495–502
Israel: divorce in, 27–28, 30; family structure in, 27; ideological values in, 27–28; ideological values in, 28; national/social identity and, 27. See also Divorce mediation, gender differences in argument and (study)

J

Jacobs, S., "What Mediators Do with Words: Implementing Three Models of Rational Discussion in Dispute Mediation," 177–203
Jones, W., "Complexity, Conflict Resolution, and How the Mind Works," 485–494

K

Kaufman, S., "Conflict Resolution: If It Weren't for the Client, I'd Have Done a Great Job," 441–454
Kestner, P. B., The Conflict Resolution Training Program: Leader's Manual, reviewed, 249–252
Kusztal, I. L., "Discourses in the Use and Emergence of Organizational Conflict," 231–247

L

Labor mediators, 183
Language: culture and, 464; describing negotiation, 435–436; describing parties, 435–436; etymology of mediation terms and, 436; shaping reality and, 439; teaching and, 437–439. See also Metaphors, negotiation and
Law enforcement, peacemaking program and, 496–500
Lawyers: culture and, 469; third-party roles/activities of, 442–445, 450–453; training/education of, 469–470
Learning: emotions and, 475–476; insight and, 478; insight model and, 479–482; knowledge acquisition and, 478–479; levels of, 478; in mediation, 477–478; transformative, 475
"Learning About Learning: The Value of 'Insight,'" 477–484
Learning Lessons from Waco: When the Parties Bring Their Gods to the Negotiation Table, reviewed, 373–378
Learning phases, 431, 477–483
LeBaron, M., "Windows on Diversity: Lawyers, Culture, and Mediation Practice," 463–472
Legal aspects, of mediation. See Nondisclosure; Olam v. Congress Mortgage Co.
Legal culture: cultural competence and, 468; disputes and, 470; mediation and, 468–471; mediator awareness and, 468–471; strengths of, 469

M

McAdoo, B., "Conflict Resolution: If It Weren't for the Client, I'd Have Done a Great Job," 441–454
Macfarlane, J., "Having Students Take Responsibility for the Process of Learning," 455–462
Maida, P. R., "From Determining Capacity to Facilitating Competencies: A New Mediation Framework," 385–401
Malaysia, mediation in. See Cross-cultural mediation
Marriage disolution mediation: benefits of early use of, 379–380. See also Divorce mediation Mediation: competency identification and, 384; confessional nature of, 294–295; diversity test for, 463–464; emotionality vs. rationality in, 296; exploring motivation to go beyond power structure and, 62–63; facilitative vs. elicitive approaches to, 301–302; grounding mediation in organizational reality and, 61–62; introduction to mediation process and, 293–294; learning models and, 383; legal culture and 468–471; mediator orientation and, 384; non-Western values and, 287–291; philosophical approach to, 383; power balance in, 54–58; preparing parties to "reenter" organizational structure and, 63; reframing and, 295; storytelling process in, 294–295; Western goals/assumptions in, 287–288; Western harmony models of, 289. See also Carburetor controversy (case example); Cross-cultural mediation; Divorce mediation; Intercultural mediation; Mediation, breakdown of; Negotiation; Online dispute resolution; Workplace mediation

Mediation breakdown: case example of, 51–54, 59–60; exploring motivation to go beyond power structure and, 62–63; final stage: mediation breakdown, 60; grounding mediation in organizational reality and, 61–62; igniting factor: blaming/resisting, 60; power dynamics and, 54–58; precipitating factor: nonrecognition of hierarchical structure, 59–60; predisposing factor: power balance, 58–59; preparing parties to "reenter" organizational structure and, 63; questions about, 54, 58; stages of, 58–60; strategies to avoid, 61–63

Mediation capacity. See Capacity, determination of party

Mediation models: evaluative outcome-oriented, 481; insight, 479–482; relational, 481

Mediation parties. See Parties, to mediation

"Mediation, Power, and Cultural Difference," 287–306

Mediation readiness, 389

Mediation training: cultural competence and, 466–468; culture and, 464; emotions and, 475–476; evaluating options/moving toward settlement and, 452–453; generating multiple options and, 451–452; needs assessment and, 446–450; steps of, 446–453; trainee purposes and, 474–475; understanding parties interests and, 450–451. See also Negotiation pedagogy; Teaching/training models; Training/development

"Mediation Within a Hierarchical Structure: How Can It Be Done Successfully," 51–65

Mediator-client tension, 177–178. See also Carburetor controversy (case example)

Mediator orientations: influences on, 404; mediator unawareness of, 404–405; organizational context and, 406; personal demographics and, 404–406; professional background and, 406;

Mediator orientations, demographics and (study): background, 404–406; comparing characteristics/orientations and, 413–420, 423; conclusions, 420–423; context, 406–407; data analysis, 409–410; description of characteristics and, 410–411; discussion, 420–424; future research and, 423; implications, 423–424; measures, 408–409; mediation signals and, 417; mediator orientations and, 411–412; method, 407–420; organizational context and, 406, 423; primary mediation outcomes and, 411, 413, 417; primary mediation process focus and, 413; primary mediator goals and, 410, 413, 420, 423; professional background and, 406, 413, 420, 423; sex differences and, 405, 413, 417, 420, 423; survey, 407–408

Mediator rationality. See Rational dispute resolution models

"Mediator Reflections on Practice: Connecting Select Demographics and Preferred Orientations," 403–427

Mediator tools: attitude/expectations, 503–504; boundary setting, 503; optimism, 114, 503; self-awareness, 100–103, 501–502; self-control, 103–105, 502–503

Mediators: bargaining approach by, 191–196; capacity determination and, 387–388; competence of, 200; critical discussion approach by, 184–191; cultural competence of, 465–466; emotion work and, 220–223, 226–227; expectations of, 184–185; exploring motivation to go beyond power structure and, 62–63; grounding mediation in organizational reality and, 61–62; insight model and, 479–482; legal considerations and, 5–20; legal culture and, 468–471; power balance and, 55–56, 61; preparing parties to "reenter" organizational structure and, 63; rational dispute resolution models and, 185–200; settlement vs. communication stance of, 183; strategies for avoiding mediation breakdown and, 61–64; as therapist, 23–24; therapeutic discussion approach

by, 196–200; typologies of, 183. See also Bias, mediator; Confidentiality, mediator; Divorce mediators; Mediator orientations; Mediator rationality; Mediator tools; Neutral interveners; Neutrality/ impartiality, mediator; Nondisclosure, mediator; Third parties
Meta-emotions, 69
Metaphors: human change and, 347; human thinking and, 489–490; about time, 489; worldview and, 375–376
Metaphors, negotiation and: adversarial, 434; cooperative, 434; ethics and, 436; outcomes and, 436. See also Language
Model Standards of Conduct for Mediators, 386, 394
Multiculturalism: culture and, 359–361; ethnic diversity and, 359–360; hard vs. soft, 360–361
Mutual recognition, 376

N

Navajo Peacemaking Program, 495, 497–498
Negotiating Emotions," 67–82
Negotiation: blame vs. contribution approach to, 437; competition- cooperation dichotomy of, 435–436, 438–439; cooperative vs. adversarial metaphors of, 434; for couples, 43; cultural sensitivity and, 353; descriptive lenses and, 437; descriptive/prescriptive approach to, 436–437; divorce mediation and, 42–43; etymology of, 436; gender differences and, 24–25; labels for parties in, 435–436; language describing, 435–436; linguistic awareness and, 438–439; outcomes, 437; power and, 54–58; power-balancing techniques in, 56; reframing and, 437; role tensions and, 75–78; women's voice and, 25. See also Emotions, negotiation and; Negotiation pedagogy
Negotiation pedagogy: dependence model of, 460; language and, 437–438; linguistic awareness and, 438–439; professorial power and, 456–457, 461; reiterative learning and, 459; student responsibility for learning and, 457–459; student self-assessment and, 460–461; student self-awareness and, 459; teacher-student dichotomy and, 438–439
Negotiators, emotions of. See Emotions, negotiation and Neurolinguistic programming (NLP), 121–123
Neutral interveners: architects and, 443–445; lawyers and, 442–443; questions for future research about, 453–454; skills of, 442; third-party roles/activities of, 442–445, 450–453. See also Mediators; Third parties
Neutrality/impartiality, mediator: conflict resolution and, 492; emotions and, 113; mediator orientation and, 403–404; questions about, 493; techniques for enhancing, 217–218, 223–227. See also Bias, mediator; Mediator orientation
New Mexico School of Law, 429
Nondisclosure, mediator: confidentiality and, 16–17; "justice" interest and, 17–19; mediator testimony and, 15; policies favoring, 15–19; recommendations regarding, 19–20. See also Olam v. Congress Mortgage Co.
Nonverbal communication: areas for investigation on, 125–126; emotional deception and, 125; importance of, 121; mirroring and matching of, 123, 125; neurolinguistic programming and, 121–123; prejudicial, 126; resources on, 125; techniques for developing, 124
Normative pragmatics, 184–185

O

Objectivism, 486
Objectivity, 492–493;
Olam v. Congress Mortgage Co: background, 6–8; California statutes and, 13–15; conclusion/recommendations and, 19–20; court reasoning/decision making, 8–11; mediator confidentiality and, 16–17; nondisclosure and, 15–19; statutory misinterpretation in, 11–13
Ombuds: definition of, 309: growth of, 309; literature on, 309–310
Online dispute resolution (ODR): applicability of, 278–281; communication and, 272, 274–275; definition of, 262; effectiveness of, 267–278, 281–283; emotions and, 277–278; empathy and, 272–273; face-to-face mediation vs. 275–277; KISS principle and, 268–269; mediation pace and, 273–274; mediator confidence and, 277; mediator skills and, 278; mediator style and, 268–269; motivation and, 272; online behavior and, 274; prior relationship and, 275; privacy and, 271–272; research on, 262; time and, 275–276; trust and, 270–271. See also

Dispute resolution; Online dispute resolution (study)
Online dispute resolution (study): applicability of, 278–281; background/research on, 262–263; disputes, 265; effectiveness of, 267–278, 281–283; factors influencing effectiveness of, 267–278; hands-on tour, 265, 267–268; instructions, 264, 267; lessons learned, 281–283; methodology, 263–267; online facilities, 264, 268, 281; process, 265–267, 270; research questions, 261–262; schedule, 263; subjects/setting, 283–264
Optimism, 114, 503
Organizational conflict: EVLN (exit, voice, loyalty, neglect) model and, 308; grief and, 84. See also Conflict; Organizational conflict (study)
Organizational conflict (study): data analysis, 235; discourse of human connection and, 238–239; discourse of professionalism and, 237–238; interviews, 234–235; limitations, 245–246; managerial discourse of bureaucracy and, 236–237; methodology, 234–235; participants, 234; political discourse and, 239–244; practical implications, 244–245; research findings, 235–244; research questions, 231–232; theoretical background, 232–234
Organizational discourse: of bureaucracy, 236–237; conflict transformation and, 233; organizational conflict and, 233, 244; political, 239–244; of professionalism, 237–238; sensemaking and, 232–233; spatial-temporal aspects and, 233–234
Ostermeyer, M., review by, 249–252

P

Papua New Guinea, aggression in, 290
Parties, to mediation: Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and, 385, 387, 392; discrimination and, 392; language describing, 435–436. See also Capacity, determination of party; Capacities, of parties
Peacemaking, Navajo program for, 495–500
Peer mediation: Comprehensive Peer Mediation Evaluation Program and, 139; conflict resolution outcomes of, 138–139; impact on student mediators of, 138; popularity of, 137–138; positive outcomes of, 138; research on, 137–138. See also Center for Conflict Resolution (CCR), of Cleveland Municipal School District (study)
"Peer Mediation Training and Program Implementation in Elementary Schools: Research Results," 133–135;
Picard, C. A., "Learning About Learning: The Value of 'Insight,'" 477–484
Pines, A. M., "Gender Differences in Content and Style of Argument Between Couples During Divorce Mediation," 23–50
Planners, third-party roles/activities of, 443–445, 450–453
Poitras, J., "Mediation Within a Hierarchical Structure: How Can It Be Done Successfully," 51–65
Political discourse, 239–244
Power: as communication, 54; definitions of, 54; dynamics of negotiation and, 56; Foucaultian conceptualization of, 291–292; hierarchical, 56–57; intercultural mediation and, 291–298; negotiation process and, 55–56; situational, 25
Power asymmetry, 212, 222–224
Power balance: empowerment and, 209–210; ethical issues in, 210; gender and, 25; mediation and, 54–58; mediators and, 55–56; money and, 129–131; objectivity and, 493; proposal-making patterns and, 55; repercussions of, 55
Power dynamics: behavioral dynamics and, 57–58; choices in, 57; creating asymmetry and, 212, 222–224; dimensions of, 56–58; dynamics of negotiation and, 56; ethical issues in, 210; hierarchical power and, 56–57; inflexibility and, 58; sociopsychological perspective on, 57–58
Power preponderance theory, 55
Power-balancing techniques, 56
Professionalism, discourse of, 237–238

Q

Questioning, 482–483

R

Race, and culture, 357, 359
Racism, 359
Rational dispute resolution models: bargaining, 191–196; critical discussion, 184–191; discourse ideal and, 184; mediator competence and, 200; normative pragmatics and, 184–185; therapeutic discussion, 196–200

Rationality. See Rational dispute resolution models
Ray, L., The Conflict Resolution Training Program: Leader's Manual, reviewed, 249–252
Reader Response: "False Dichotomies and Asking the Right Questions," 253–256; "Response to Lorie Schreier's 'Emotional Intelligence and Mediation Training,'" 501–504; "Response to Irving and Benjamin's "Money and Mediation," 129–131
Reductionism, 486–487, 491
Reframing, in mediation, 295
Reiterative learning, 459
Relational argument style, 30
Relational identity concerns: affiliation and, 73–74, 76–78; appraisal and, 72, 75, 78; autonomy, 73–74, 76–78; core relational themes and, 72; dimensions of, 73–74; emotions and, 71–75; multiple selves and, 71; negotiating emotions and, 78–79; role and, 74; role tensions and, 75–78; social structure and, 74–75; status and, 74–75
Remland, M. S., I Hear What You Say, But What Are You Telling Me? The Strategic Use of Nonverbal Communication in Mediation, reviewed, 121–127
Responding in Peaceful and Positive Ways (RIPP) program, 381
"Response to Irving and Benjamin's 'Money and Mediation,'" 129–131
"Response to Lorie Schreier's 'Emotional Intelligence and Mediation Training,'" 501–504
Reviews: The Conflict Resolution Training Program: Leader's Manual, 249–252
Role, 74

S

Schneider, A. K., "Having Students Take Responsibility for the Process of Learning," 455–462; "How Can We Teach So It Takes?" 429–432
Schreier, L. S., "Emotional Intelligence and Mediation Training," 99–119
Scientific method, 487
Self-awareness: conflict resolution and, 459; emotional intelligence and, 100–103, 501–502
Self-control, 502–503
Self-determination, 23
Selfhood: conflict and, 290–291; cross-cultural views of, 290–291, 296–297, 299; mediation and, 292, 299
Self-regulation, 100, 103–105
Sensemaking, 232–233
Shapiro, D. L., "Negotiating Emotions," 67–82
Situational power, 25
Social construction theory, 41–42
Society of Professionals in Dispute Resolution (SPIDR), 386. See also Association for Conflict Resolution (ACR)
"Sounds of Silence: Compelling Mediator Testimony in Olam v. Congress Mortgage Co., The," 5–21
Stains, Jr., R. R., "Training on Purpose," 473–476
Standards, party capacity and, 386–387
Stoltz, J. M., "Balancing on Words: Human Change Processes in Mediation," 331–349
"Structural Sources of Conflict in a University Context," 161–176
Students: responsibility for learning, 457–459; self-assessment of, 460–461; self-awareness of, 459; as counterparts in learning, 437–439; linguistic awareness of, 438–439; metaphors and, 433–434; teachers-as-experts and, 456–457

T

Tal, Y., "Gender Differences in Content and Style of Argument Between Couples During Divorce Mediation," 23–50
Teacher-as-expert, 456–457
Teaching/training models: cultural influences on, 430, 463–471; learning phases and, 431, 477–483; limits of professionalism and, 431, 495–500; mental maps and, 431, 484–494; metaphor and, 430, 433–439; self-limiting nature of, 430, 473–476; student self-responsibility and, 430, 455–461; third-party neutral, 431, 441–454. See also Training/development
Therapeutic discussion model, 196–200;
Third parties: architects as, 443–445; client representation role and, 446; lawyers as, 442–445; neutral interveners as, 442–445; planners as, 443–445. See also Mediators; Neutral interveners; Third party process phases
Third party process phases: agreement implementation, 442, 447–449, 452–453;

crafting solutions, 442, 447–449, 451–452; intervention process management, 442, 447–451; needs assessment and, 442, 446–450
"Training on Purpose," 473–476
Training/development: Conflict Resolution Training Program and, 249–252; delivery modes of, 429; as disempowering, 494–496; questions about, 493. See also Conflict resolution education (CRE); Emotional intelligence, mediation training and (study); Mediation skills training; Negotiation skills teaching; Teaching/training models
Transformation, change process and, 332
Tyler-Evans, M. E., "Aspects of Grief in Conflict: Re-Visioning Response to Dispute," 83–97
Type I (cultural insensitivity) errors, 362
Type II (overvaluing culture) errors, 363–367
"Type I and Type II Errors in Culturally Sensitive Conflict," 351–371

U

Unemotional argument style, 30

V

"Victims, Targets, Protectors, and Destroyers: Using Disputant Accounts to Develop a Grounded Taxonomy of Disputant Orientations," 307–329
Vise, K., "Disputing Neutrality: A Case Study of a Bias Complaint During Mediation," 203–230
Voice: definition of, 309; EVLN model and, 208; research on, 308. See also Disputant orientations

W

Waco, Texas: as critical incident, 373–374; lessons learned from, 377; metaphor/paradigm shift and, 375–376; worldmaking narratives and, 375
Wade, J., "False Dichotomies and Asking the Right Questions," 253–256
Western cultural values, and mediation, 287–289
"What Mediators Do with Words: Implementing Three Models of Rational Discussion in Dispute Mediation," 177–203
Whitaker, S., "Disputing Neutrality: A Case Study of a Bias Complaint During Mediation," 203–230
"Windows on Diversity: Lawyers, Culture, and Mediation Practice," 463–472
Wiseman, V., "Mediation Within a Hierarchical Structure: How Can It Be Done Successfully," 51–65
Woods, S. M., review by, 373–381
Workplace mediation, in community organizations case example, 51–54, 59–60
Worldmaking narratives, 375
Worldnaming power, 374
Worldview: critical events and, 374; definition of, 374; diversity and, 375; intractable conflict and, 374; metaphors of, 375; worldmaking narratives and, 375; worldnaming power and, 374

Z

Zumeta, Z., "Windows on Diversity: Lawyers, Culture, and Mediation Practice," 463–472